For the facilitator:

This module contains information and suggested learning activities in Trends, Networks, and Critical Thinking in the 21st Century. It consists only one learning outcome with different activities to accomplish. Further, this module develops the attitudes required to acquire the knowledge and skills you can use in giving help to the needy communities. You, as a learner can ask assistance from your siblings or anybody else who can help you in this module.

Please use separate sheet in answering the Pre-test, activity exercises, and post-test.

For the learner:

Upon completing this module, it is expected provides opportunities for students to discover patterns and extract meanings from emerging trends. It aids in developing their critical and creative thinking skills-- essential tools for decision making and understanding “ethics of care”. Global trends in the 21st century is examined and are either accepted or rejected on a sound set of criteria. Students will be asked to create and analyze scenarios that will challenge them to (1) formulate their stances on issues or concerns; (2) propose interventions and (3) formulate alternative futures. The students will realize the interconnections between their neural connections and social realities.

Report to your teacher for an assessment to check your achievement of knowledge and skills required in this module. You must ensure that you accomplished the given activities before reporting to your teacher for an actual assessment. If you pass the assessment, you can proceed to the next module.

Congratulations in advance and see you in the next level.

What is It

MEANING AND DIMENSIONS OF DEMOCRACY

According to the 1987 Philippine Constitution, ARTICLE II-Declaration of Principles and State Policies:

Section 1. The Philippines is a democratic and republican State. Sovereignty resides in the people and all government authority emanates from them.

Democracy is a cherished legacy of many countries that is associated with rule of the majority. Under a democratic system, the government provides citizens with rights to express themselves freely, to make decisions in accordance with the rule of most of the people and to elect officials who exercise political power and represent the interests of the people. It is one of the forms of government followed by many countries around the world. In this system, people collectively exercise equal rights to participate in decision-making processes.

Democracy is derived from the 2 Greek words, namely, demos (people) and kratos (rule) which means "rule by the people".

As a system of government, democracy adheres to the rule of the people. It provides people the right to exercise "some form of genuine control over government" (Lawson,1989,547)

Merriam Webster definition:

a. Government by the people especially rule of the majority.

b. A government in which the supreme power is vested in the people and exercised by them directly or indirectly through a system of representation usually involving periodically held free elections. Democracy is defined as a form of government in which the supreme power is vested in the people and exercised by them directly or indirectly through a system of representation usually involving periodic free elections. Democracy refers to a political system in which government is form by the people, exercised either directly or through elected representative.

Main Points:

People Elected government:

 There is freedom of speech.

There is no one party government In the country.

 Right to give vote to elect their representatives.

The common people, considered as the primary source of political power.

 The principles of social equality and respect for the individual within a community.

Abraham Lincoln -Democracy is a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people."

Common democratic practices.

The four common practices are free elections, citizen participation, majority rule and minority rights, and constitutional government.

Manifestations of a democratic and republican State:

The observance of the rule of the majority.

The observance of the principle that ours is a government of laws, and not of men.

The presence of elections through popular will.

The observance of the principle of separation of powers and the system of checks and balances.

The observance of the principle that the legislature cannot pass irreparable laws.

The observance of the law on public officers.

The observance of the principle that the State cannot be sued without it.

DEMOCRACY MODELS:

3 Models of Democracy by Helena Catt (1999,5-16):

1. Participatory Democracy – people rule through the collective discussion of issues that need to be debated. They discuss and take into consideration as well the possible solutions to the problem until such time that an arrangement on the best solution or option for the group is achieved. In this model of democracy, decisions and solutions are agreed upon and made by all members without resorting to a vote (CATT,1999,16). Examples of participatory democracy include members of a cooperative resolving an issue related to the organization; by voting done by the citizens in the political community.

Helena Catt is Senior Lecturer in Political Studies at the University of Auckland, New Zealand. She is author of Voting Behavior: A Radical Critique (1996), and co-author of Season of Discontent: By-elections and the Bolger Government (1993) and Voter's Choice: Electoral Change in New Zealand? (1992).

4 Major Components of Participatory Democracy according to Catt:

1. All members could raise an issue, provide possible solutions to the problem, and take part in the crafting of the final decision.
2. The issues are discussed during face-to-face meetings
3. There is many discussions involved in addressing the problem and everyone who wants to join can contribute to the discussion
4. Members want consensus.

2. Referenda and Initiatives (Direct Democracy) –

Political Scientists define direct democracy in 2 ways:

1. People decide in an assembly or forum of citizens, without conducting an election or using representatives.
2. Referendum democracy – referendum refers to a vote on a particular issue in which the outcome or decision is reached directly through people's vote.

In the Philippines: Referendums are allowed in accordance with Republic Act. # 6735 or the "People's Initiative and Referendum Act (1989)" – In the said law, people "under a system of initiative and referendum can directly propose, enact, approve or reject in whole or in part, the constitution, laws, ordinances, resolutions passed by any legislative body upon compliance with the requirements of the Act".

In Section 3 (c) of the said Act, a referendum is conducted by the electorate to approve or reject a particular legislation through an election called for the purpose.

2 classifications Referendum according to R.A. No. 6735:

1. The referendum on statutes or the petition to approve or reject an act or law or part thereof that was passed by congress.
 2. The referendum on local law – a petition to approve or reject a law, resolution or ordinance enacted by regional assemblies and local legislative bodies.
- to exercise the power or referendum, Section 5 of the act stated that at least 10% of the total number or registered voters, of which every legislative district is represented by at least 3% of the registered voters thereof, shall sign a petition for the purpose and register the petition with the COMELEC.

3.Representative of Liberal Democracy – requires the election of a few members who are responsible for making the necessary decisions for the people. These people are chosen by the electorate as their representatives in government and thus they are answerable to the people for making such decisions.

Example: Election of PTA Officers in the school; Presidential elections, Elections of the Members of the Senate or House of Representatives.
